What is the best way to monitor the clipboard, and parse the contents into a text editor? I know that there are clipboard monitoring tools available, but I do not want to install extra system software, so for the application itself I will not be using a specific clipboard monitor. Clarification: When a user pastes a text, I want to do the text-parsing and printing in my application, and NOT in the pasteboard. I do not want my app to paste to the pasteboard automatically, although I am open for ideas. A: The Cocoa clipboard monitoring stuff shouldn't be too hard. First, implement these functions: BOOL recordClipboard(const char *types, const char *pasteboardTypes); void getPasteboardData(char *buffer, CFIndex size, CFStringRef pasteboardTypes, CFDictionaryRef possibleTypes); void handlePasteboardEvent(CFStringRef pasteboardTypes); void handleClipboardEvent(CFStringRef pasteboardTypes); Don't forget to check if pasteb
